LOCAL ACCOMMODATION TRANSPORT

Lower House Farm is a rural location and we strongly recommend that you book transport well in advance at the time of booking your accommodation. There really are no reliable on-demand taxi services coming from Abergavenny, Hay or Hereford.

Thankfully there are a couple of fantastic local minibus service that we work with closely for our events at Lower House farm. They operate locally and know the area, accommodation providers and country lanes extremely well. They can help you organise either a pick up/drop off route or a shuttle bus service back to local accommodation at the end of the wedding.

We recommend that you have a designated “head of transport” for your wedding party. Somebody who can coordinate with the companies and your party to make the planned routes as efficient as possible, to know who’s going where and make sure everybody gets home safely at the end of the day.

Angel Barn makes a perfect base for a small family on holiday, or a get-away for those looking for a romantic break, country air, good food and, perhaps, to investigate the attractions of Hay-on-Wye or Abergavenny.

Angel Barn takes its name from the little statue by the doorway, and this angel would smile more broadly if she could see the interior. A spacious hallway lets light pour in from the roof lights, and creates a feeling of airiness. The living-room is open-plan, with kitchen to one side of the glazed doors, and sitting-area to the other. HILL FARM

 Sleeps 2 - 6

 3 Bedrooms

 2 Bathrooms

EWYAS HAROLD, HEREFORDSHIRE

This old farmhouse in the Welsh borders has an ancient, but timeless, atmosphere – you feel as if you’ve jumped back into the arms of history, and all thought of external humdrum life disappears in the most relaxing way. Hill Farm has been sympathetically restored by the owners and brought up to date with a light touch. Authentic details abound: old screen walls, pegged beams, lime plaster, ancient oak doors, and the original ‘fire stair’, wrapping itself around the chimney breast. It is modest and unassuming, with no pretensions to luxury or urban refinement. For that reason, it is a truly relaxing place to be, where adults can revel in the fact that their children can escape screens and organised entertainment and run wild in deep countryside, making up their own outside games. Or it is the most private place for a couple to escape to and enjoy each other’s undiluted company.

KAYA AT BLACKHILL FARM, CRASWALL

Getting here is half the fun, driving through narrow country roads, up steep hills and past grazing sheep before being greeted by friendly owners Emily and Malik, whose house adjoins your annex. They are both artists (you'll see their artwork on the walls) and music makers and they've re-wilded the meadow in front of you as well as hand-built lots of the furniture from bits and bobs they've found on the farm. They love meeting new people but can leave you be to relax and enjoy the peace and quiet of this countryside refuge. You'll find lots of basics in the mini larder, so you don't have to cart absolutely everything from home, along with a generous hamper of homemade and local produce on arrival.

Soak in a double bathtub with more views, cook up a storm outdoors over the fire. On sunny days you'll be swinging in the hanging chair admiring birds (find seeds for the feeder waiting) and listening to the hum of fat bees feasting on the wildflower meadow next to you. If the weather isn't playing ball you can light the wood-burner and have a cosy afternoon in playing board games provided, or with a bit of notice you can have a massage, reflexology, reiki – even a private yoga class. The main thing is to totally wind down in such a beautiful space.

LONGTOWN, HEREFORDSHIRE

Three nature reserves lie within walking distance of this lovely comfortable studio, and the Black Mountains are nearby. Buzzards, hobbies, red kites, and even peregrine falcons fly over the conservation farm where The Sett is situated. Foxes and badgers prowl through the ancient woodland, with tawny oils hunting at night. In summer, kingfishers fly past your window, and you may spot dippers searching for food in the stream. In short, this is a wonderful place for a private mini-break or mini-moon, or a longer holiday to really explore this completely unspoilt and varied landscape.

The Sett is a studio apartment on the first floor of a little detached barn. A staircase takes you up from your own front door to a lobby where you can leave coats. The studio living-room is wonderful – spacious, light-filled and comfortable, with beautiful beams. The bed is a super-king, with a big TV positioned for indulgent in-bed TV-watching. The kitchen is ship-shape in one corner, a comfy sofa in the other, and a round dining-table in the middle.
